Suits Were Successful—New Trial
Granted Miss Pringle.

Connellville figured largely in the divorce proceedings in court at Uniontown this morning when Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen handed down three decrees granting wives freedom from their spouses after unsuccessful marital experiences. The first decree handed down was that granting a divorce to Hazel May Bryte from Commodore Perry Bryte. Bryte is now living in Wilkinsburg. Mrs. Bryte is the daughter of J. A. Guller. The two were married at Cumberland June 7, 1902, and separated since July 1, 1908, was charged against the husband.

Rachel Ann O'Leary, also of Connellville, was granted a divorce from John O'Leary. They were married March 13, 1906, at Blairsville. Ind. Cruel and barbarous treatment was alleged.

Because he allowed her home to be sold by the Sheriff because of "pure laziness," Jessie Emma Brookman applied for a divorce from George Brookman, both of Connellville, and the court agreed with the libellant.

The decree was handed down this morning putting asunder the ties that bound the couple together since August 14, 1885. Mrs. Brookman alleged that she was reduced to the extremity of selling her household goods among her neighbors to make a living.

Marj Wanz of Uniontown was granted a divorce from Hugo Wanz, a Brownsville bartender. They were married in Hazleton, Pa., September 15, 1894. Cruel treatment was alleged.

In the divorce case of Rose Vernon against John Vernon, Attorney Lee Spill was appointed master.

A charter was granted the Juniorville Agricultural, Mechanical and Industrial school, a new organization which has taken over the old Juniorville Soldiers' Orphan's school. The trustees named are G. W. Kincaid, A. P. McClure, J. T. Whitson and Burgess R. S. McCrum of Uniontown, and Jas. A. Monroe of Greensburg.

In the suit of Andy Lehigh against John Kravick, the rule on the defendant to open judgment was discontinued at the cost of the plaintiff.

A new trial was granted in the case of Ella Pringle against John W. Gribble, the plaintiff's attorneys alleging new evidence has been secured. Miss Pringle sought a divorce and damages alleged to have been sustained by a fall on the ice in front of the Alhambra hotel at Fairview December 21, 1908. In the former trial a verdict for the defense was returned.

George Blitzer yesterday entered suit against Thomas Sovak, both of Tower Hill, charging slander. He seeks to recover $2,500 damages because Sovak's wife remarks.

Naturalization court is being held today by Naturalization Commissioner Shockey, who is acting in the absence of J. A. G. Stetzer.

Chief Hetzel is Improving Fast

Chief of Police George Hetzel is somewhat improved today according to the report of his attending physician. Yesterday the Chief's condition was serious following his collapse from heat prostration and grave fears were aroused.

Today the Chief is materially improved and will be out and around again in the near future unless unexpected complications develop.

Frank Duzeris of Broad Ford was arrested yesterday morning by Constable William Roland of Dunbar township on charges of assault and battery, disorderly conduct and carrying a dangerous weapon.

The trouble occurred on the Fourth of July. Duzeris alleged that while sitting on the steps of his home, the defendant came up back of him and putting one hand over the president's eyes, pretended he was cutting his throat. Duzeris went through the motions so realistically that Duzeris could scarcely get his breath. When Duzeris

AFTER TWELVE LONG YEARS
MERCHANTS CLOSE AT 6 P. M.Struggle to Get All in Line Has Been a Strenuous One but Finally is Successful.

After a campaign which lasted 12 long years the merchants of Connellville have agreed on an early closing hour during the week and last evening for the first time every store in the mercantile line closed its doors at 6 o'clock and the clerks were given a well deserved rest. The experiment will be tried during July and August and many merchants hope to have the rule made permanent.

The drug and confectionery stores were the only ones who did not join in the movement. In their business, however, the evening is the busiest part of the day. It was not expected that they would join.

The department stores, gent's furnishings houses, jewelry stores, with stores and, in fact, a line of most sporting establishments, notably canile business, agreed to the early closing movement and enforced it last evening. The stores will remain open as usual on Monday and Saturday nights as well as the nights of the Baltimore & Ohio pay.

Last night, after midnight, Phalin detected a mysterious looking stranger lurking about the yards. The officer took him to City Hall and entered the record on the docket. The charge was "suspicious character; may be H. Frank Smith."

Unfortunately for Phalin's hopes and plans the suspicious character was Daniel Higgins, who has been trying several days to reach Sand Patch, where he has a job. Higgins appeared in police court the other day and was discharged. Although admitting he had been somewhat intoxicated last evening, Higgins Evans permitted him to go. Officer Joseph O'Brien also got a suspicious character on the South Side early this morning. He was William Richardson, colored. He too, was discharged.

James Black, who said he lives at Lakeview and digs coal, took 38 hours for being drunk.

The Sun's Rays
Roasts Potato Bugs

The excessive heat that has prevailed for the past several days has been death to the Colorado potato bugs. According to what C. B. Stewart of Smithfield says the ailing rays of Old Sol have been more potent in extermination of this pest than Paris green. He says he has a patch that was literally alive with the bugs. He went out yesterday prepared to give them an application of Paris green, when he discovered that the bugs had disappeared. On his return he found the ground under the vines covered with dead bugs. His little, old and young ones, literally roasted by the sun's rays.

Stewart says that there couldn't have been anything else killed them, as he had not used any poisonous exterminator on the vines.

Splinter Pierced
Eye; Sight Saved

Elmer Porterfield, aged 20, son of Henry Porterfield, of Indian Head, met with a painful accident this morning which almost resulted in the loss of an eye. Porterfield started for Connellville this morning with a load of lumber. He had not gone far before a wagon struck a rut and he was jolted from his seat.

In falling a snag pierced the lower lid of Porterfield's left eye. It touched the ball of the eye but did not penetrate it. The injury was painful but fortunately not serious.

The injured man drove on to Wesley Ridenour's place where Dr. H. F. Atkinson was summoned to dress the injury.

let go Uraz said he thought he could feel blood gushing out of his jugular vein. He protested against such rough treatment and a quarrel started. One word brought on another and finally Duzeris knocked Uraz down and kicked him in the side. His face was alight with rage. The trouble arose over what he meant for a joke. The prosecutor evidently didn't enjoy the joke and hereafter Duzeris will no doubt be more careful while at play.

Lawrence Dill, a resident of Point Marion, was overcome by the heat yesterday. Later he revived and today is on a fair road to recovery.

Fugitive From County Jail Seemed Anxious to Hear Gossip of His Home Community—Spent Last Night in Dougherty's Barn.

United Press Telegram.
CONNELLVILLE, July 6.—Frank Smith, a well known resident of Fairview and vicinity, was "seeing things" or else have not recovered from the effects of their fourth of July celebration. B. Frank Smith, the escaped murderer who slipped from the county jail early Monday morning, is renewing his acquaintance with people and places about the old South farm, in George township, for the first time since he was arrested more than a year ago.

Last night he sat on the log and spent the night in Dougherty's barn, practically adjoining the Smith place, and the two families have been intimate for years. On the fourth of July Smith was seen on the old ridge range near Fairview and yesterday morning was seen sitting on a log at the edge of the woods near the Smith home.

A well known resident of the section talked with Smith yesterday morning at his log. Smith appeared perfectly rational. He talked calmly and asked about the people of the neighborhood. He seemed anxious to know what had transpired about his home since his incarceration. Smith made no threats. He did not appear armed and as far as the reports that he was dangerous are concerned, the man who sat on the log and chatted with him yesterday says they are absolutely groundless.

When the reports of Smith's presence in George township became so numerous today the officials at Uniontown were notified. Up to 2 o'clock this morning none in the Sheriff's office had made any move to start out after the fugitive. The action of Sheriff Johns and his deputies indicates that they are not particularly anxious to bring the prisoner back to jail. Smith was in a peculiar position; he was charged with no crime, having been acquitted of murder on the ground of insanity, while it was impossible to secure his admission to any institution because Smith was too smart for the examining physicians.

The Backbone of Heat Wave Broken

The coolest place in the United States today, as far as can be determined, is Fairview, where the thermometer registered 44 degrees.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The backbone of the severest heat spell the middle West has ever experienced was broken early today by cooling showers and refreshing breezes. It is estimated that 500 persons throughout the country have succumbed to the effects of the heat which has been the greatest in the 41 years' history of the United States Weather Bureau.

The number of deaths reported from heat prostrations to date, are as follows: Pittsburgh, 25; New York, 110; Chicago, 150; Philadelphia, 60; Toledo, 11; Toronto, Ont., 33; Indianapolis, 11; Parkersburg, W. Va., 11; Wheeling, 2; Delaware, 0; Zanesville, 0, 2.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 6.—The residence of J. A. Dunn was badly damaged by fire today by a little bird that was so heedless as to pick up a match from the street and proceed to incorporate it in a nest it was building on the Baum gables. With the temperature in the roof at over 100 degrees the match and the straw in the nest proved a combination that had a stiff blaze going before the fire men arrived.

Showers Coming
Weather Man Says

Showers tonight or Friday; cooler Friday is the most weather bulletin. Relief from the hot spell is promised by the weather man. Today's forecast predicts showers tonight or tomorrow and cooler tomorrow. The news will be welcome to the sweltering populace of the coke region. The weather this morning was just as hot as yesterday although there was more of a breeze and the zephyrus made the weather just a trifle more comfortable than yesterday or the day before.

The temperature continues to do an upward march. It started with 80 at 8 o'clock and had gone well past 90 by noon. The highest mark yesterday was 94 at the West Penn. although some thermometers went over the 100 mark. At 3 o'clock last evening it was 94 and continued in the nineties until sometime after dark.

While no heat prostrations were reported today or yesterday, except the case of Chief of Police Hetzel, physicians say there is considerable suffering. Children, and especially babies, are the principal sufferers and it is keeping the doctors on the move.

Officer P. M. Rulli had a long chase after Harry Beal, one of the fugitives from the county jail who escaped with Frank Smith early Monday morning, but lost him on the South Side last evening. Officer Rulli was on a South Side car and spotted Beal walking along Arch street.

Before the car could be stopped the fugitive had slipped the officer and got a good start. Rulli jumped from the car as quickly as possible and made a good run up the steep Arch street hill.

While on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Myrtle Leander at Harrisburg, W. Va., Miss Anna Workman, one of the most widely known young women of Bullock township, died at an early hour this morning. Miss Workman's death was very sudden and the telegram received this morning by Mr. Workman announcing the death of his daughter, did not state the cause.

Miss Workman left for Harrisburg about three weeks ago and several days ago her mother went to Harrisburg to spend the Fourth. About a year ago she suffered a stroke of paralysis from which she had about fully recovered. Her relatives think her death was due to a second stroke.

Newcomer Family Gathering Held
In Lower Tyrone Twp. on Fourth.

A family gathering of the close relatives of A. G. Newcomer's family in Tyrone township, The home place of A. G. Newcomer is one of the finest farms in that section and, though there are many people who do not know it, this section of Fayette county is not excelled by any in Western Pennsylvania for farming. The view, too, in that part of Tyrone is beyond belief on a clear day to anyone except one who has been there and seen for himself the great sweep of territory that lies before one's gaze along the mountain ridge away to the north and south and the big expanse of country observable to the west.

There were about 25 of the Newcomer clan at the dinner served in the peach orchard on the Fourth and no one enjoyed it more than did Dr. G. W. Newcomer of Connellville who was very much among one of those present. It was just an old fashioned family gathering and immensely popular to be an appetizer. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith and family, Dawson, E. G. Schell and family, Antridge, E. G. Frank Ruse, wife and family, Uniontown; daughter, Nannie and husband, Scotland; Mr. and Mrs. George W. Newcomer, Tyrone township; Miss Leilah, at home, and Dr. G. W. Newcomer of Connellville.

Together with the certificate of incorporation was filed a certificate of power of attorney with Judge Frank Cox as counsel for the corporation. Colonel McDermott is treasurer of the company as well as president, and the headquarters are in Morgantown.

It has been reported that the surveyors at work on the line between Morgantown and Point Marion were connected with the West Penn interests, but no statement regarding this could be secured from the incorporators today. A company of West Penn recently incorporated a Pennsylvania company to build a trolley line from Morgantown to Point Marion.

WARNS SCOTSDALE TO SAVE THE WATER

Citizens Water Company Says Alternative Will Be Indian Creek.

IS NOW FROM GREENLICK

Surprise Given at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Dillinger Near Scottdale—News of a Day in Brief in the MHI Town.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, July 5.—Do not waste the water, watch every spigot and close it when through drawing the necessary water, is the warning of the Citizens Water Company to its consumers in Scottdale. Unless this precaution is observed and notice is given with regard to the mountain regions it will be necessary to turn in the water from Indian Creek.

The people of Scottdale much prefer the water from the Greenlick reservoir, and the quality of water now furnished is an eminently satisfactory one. If the people of Scottdale want to continue using this water, the Citizens Water Company officials say the people must exercise reasonable economy in drawing upon the supply.

Rains are greatly needed in the mountain regions to fill up the reservoirs, the company asserts, and unless these rains come soon and in large volume it will be necessary to turn in Indian Creek water in order to insure a supply for Scottdale.

A Big Surprise.
It was a most enjoyable and largely attended surprise that was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Dillinger west of town Saturday evening, and which was attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Graft and children, Lenora, Lorena, Helen, Wray and Harry; Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Graft, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dillinger, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Ruffcorn and son, Clyde, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dillinger and children, Herbert and Rosetta; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Stoner and children, Earl, William and Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Chalm, and children Irene and Ona; Mrs. Riley, Mrs. Evans, Charlotte Dillinger, Nellie Stoner, George Stanley, Jerry Dillinger, Mary Stoner, Frank Romshine, Augusta Carlson, Maud Miller, Sherman Felgar, Phoebe Reed, Frank Hough, Joseph Felgar, Mary Reed, Edna Dodge, Mattie Vink, Lizzie Hagenson, Ruth Felgar, Ida Slaway, Blanche Hixon, Russell Broegle, Alice Slaway, Sarah Browning, Lillian Stanley, Lester Slaway, Wray Browning, Earl Felgar, Leona Newingham, Ray Felgar, Leo Koeber, John Browning, Joseph Hickey, Polly Chalm, May Stoner, Charles Chalm, Edward Stoner, Leonard Chalm, Charles Stann, Alfred Chalm, Ralph Owens, Robert Almas, Pearl Riley, Charles East, Mr. Evans, Della Porter, Amy Porter, Frank Pruett, Cecil Porter, Mr. Miller, James Cochran, Harry Baker, Russell Baker, George Smouse, Mr. Doherty, Charles Carlson, Cona Carlson, Ivan Porter and Beanie Felgar.

No Relief Sighted.
Coxs and collars were rare yesterday and the heat today will cause a similar style to be in vogue with the most of men. Yesterday was a good match for the fourth although apparently most people thought it was not so terrible a day. The mercury did climb up to over 100 it is reported from a couple of places, and suffering was quite intense. In the evening the heat was a good deal moderated and many people were out on the streets or walking up over the hills, where breezes were frequent. Today has all the elements of being another warm one, the thermometer registering 93 at 7 o'clock.

Drought Was Fatal.
William Richter, the porter at the Central hotel, who drank a quantity of disinfectant on the Fourth of July, and was taken to the Mt. Pleasant hospital, died yesterday. He did not recover consciousness and it is not known whether the disinfectant was taken with suicidal intent or accidentally. Richter was aged 45 and was divorced.

Going to Greensburg.
A number of Scottdale members of the Board of Trade expect to go to Greensburg this evening to attend the open meeting of the Board there and to hear the speech of H. M. Weir, of Bloomington, who has been employed to boost Greensburg.

No Letting Up.
The Y. M. C. A. is going strong after the $7,500 needed to complete their fund of $20,000 for a new building. Over $12,000 has been subscribed by outside parties, and the association feels that to fall in this project means a great loss of prestige to the town. Failing here will make it extremely difficult over again to raise a large sum for any worthy cause.

A Counterfeit Bill.
WASHINGTON, July 6.—A new counterfeit gold certificate, so well made in many details that the secret service regards it as highly dangerous, was found today. The new bill is a lithograph, and although it has many defects, is printed on the Government's money paper, which the counterfeiters must have obtained by despoiling a genuine note. It bears the portrait of Lincoln.

SIR FREDERICK BORDEN
LIKELY TO SUCCEED
LORD STRATHCONA.

SIR FREDERICK BORDEN
Copyright J. P. Murray

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, July 6.—

Lord Strathcona's resignation of the post of Canadian high commissioner in London opens a wide field of speculation as to his successor and may usher in the series of cabinet changes long looked for. A well defined understanding exists in liberal circles that Sir Frederick Borden, Dominion minister of militia, will succeed Lord Strathcona and will himself be succeeded as minister of militia by E. M. MacDonald, M. P. for Pictou, one of the aggressive young members of the government following in Ottawa. Sir Frederick represents a Nova Scotia constituency and has the means to sustain the post, which carries a salary too small for his social obligations. He is familiar with British affairs, having represented his country at several imperial conferences.

Some Pointers
for Tax Collectors

The tax collectors of the county must observe the law or lose money. It is the duty of the controller of the county to see that money due the county is collected and turned into the treasury just as it is his duty to carefully guard the expenditures of the county. Controller Harry Kleininger is carefully exercising the duties of his office and in so doing has had to sound a warning to the tax collectors of the county. Under an act of assembly in 1909 the time for tax collectors to make settlements and secure the rebate was extended from 30 to 60 days and the 15 days of grace allowed by the old act were abolished. All tax collectors who have not settled are not entitled to the rebate or discount. Settlements of taxes already collected are due and must be made at once or the collector will lose the rebate.

Under the act of 1909 tax collectors are allowed 30 days in which to settle and the balance of the rebate. Under the old act 60 days were allowed for the rebate and the collector was given 15 days after the expiration of the 60 in which to make a settlement. Tax collectors who have not settled must do so at once. The 30 days have expired and the controller can now charge the amount of tax due at its face value, allowing no rebate. In such a case the collector would lose the rebate allowed on all tax collected.

Tax collectors of 1910 taxes are required to settle their duplicates in full by September 1. It is the duty of the controller to see that they all settle by that time. He has sounded a warning and tax collectors who do not heed will lose by their own negligence.

RELIEF MONEY

Paid Out by the Pennsylvania Railroad During Month of May.

The Employees' Relief Funds of the Pennsylvania Railroad System distributed in benefits to their members during the month of May, 1911, $33,955.91—an average of $6,221.51 a day. This fact is brought out in a report issued by the Company today which shows that since the organization of the funds $20,820,877.69 have been paid out in benefits to members incapacitated for work or to the families of those who have died.

On the lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie since the Relief fund was established in 1895 have amounted to $22,355,068.04. In May, the Relief fund of the Pennsylvania Railroad west of Pittsburgh and Erie paid out a total of $66,804.15, of which $15,269.90 were for the families of members who died, and $51,534.25 for members who were unable to work. The sum of $3,422,235.51 represents the total payments of the Relief fund of the lines west since it was established in 1895.

Duquesne Wreck Mixes Passengers

D. L. Cowan and Hule, son George of Uniontown were among the passengers who had thrilling and dangerous experiences Monday night in a wreck of the Duquesne Limited train on the B. & O. near Allen, Md., about 10 miles the other side of Baltimore.

It being a hot night the passengers in the sleeper had retired early and were lying in their berths in very thin attire trying to get cool. All the lower berths and about half the upper berths were occupied. Mr. Cowan and son were in a lower berth.

The train was speeding along at the rate of about 60 miles an hour, when suddenly everything was shaken and Mr. Cowan felt the car bumping on the ties. Then the car was overturned with the side on which the Uniontown people were riding on the bottom. Mr. Cowan felt the grinding of the car on the ties and the shattering of glass underneath him.

A lady occupying the berth on the upper side opposite Mr. Cowan was thrown into his berth and was very much excited. Several incidents of this kind were reported. Two young ladies from New Castle who were returning home from a party in City were startled when a man was thrown into their berth. All those on the upper side were thrown out of their berths, either into the aisle or into other berths. Everyone was in extremely scanty apparel and confusion and consternation reigned in many cases.

Neither the ladies nor gentlemen were dressed in a manner that would protect them to be suddenly precipitated into the presence of strangers of the opposite sex.

The wreck was caused when the engine and mail car, going a mile a minute, followed the main track, but the four cars behind it slipped on a side track. All four cars were overturned, but the sleeper was the worst damaged and its occupants had the narrowest escapes. Fortunately no one was seriously injured. Mr. Cowan suffered a slight injury of the left knee, some of the skin being knocked off.

The engine and mail car continued on to the next station and reported the wreck, but it was an hour and a half before the relief train arrived. So bad was the wreck that all the cars were left where they lay. A special train took the passengers to Baltimore and they were transferred to another train and taken to Washington, D. C., where a sleeper was added and they retired again about 2 A. M. and arrived in Connelville without a single car with which the train had started from New York.

daily newspaper in the Conneltsville area which has the honesty and courage to print a daily report under each of the exact number of copies it prints for distribution. Other papers put forth some extravagant claims, but furnish no figures. Advertising rates

THE WEEKLY COURIER is the recognized organ of the Conneltsville industrial journal and an advertising medium for such interests.

THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 6, 1911.

DON'T GET HOT ABOUT THE WEATHER.

The hot wave which whored in the month of July was the most intense and long continued and covered a larger area than any previous torrid invasion within the memory of the oldest inhabitant, though that is always a matter of doubt. It's hard to beat the Old Settlers.

This hot wave has been accompanied in this section by much humidity which conspires to make the atmosphere peculiarly trying. The atmosphere during some days was so saturated with steam that one would not see the outlines of the surrounding hills.

Generally speaking the heated term is also remarkable for the fact that it extends from the North Atlantic to the Western Plains States. The South does not seem to be suffering any more than ordinarily from its temperature.

The five days of prostrating heat has been hard on humanity. It is estimated that over five hundred deaths have occurred directly or indirectly from the effects. Conneltsville has been blessed with excellent and invigorating breezes yesterday and today which have helped wonderfully to make the situation more endurable.

The best way to endure the heat is to endure it tranquilly. Better avoid the thermometer. The more one looks at it the hotter he gets. Don't let the mind dwell too much upon it. Don't fuss. This hot weather will not last forever, not at least on earth.

Don't get hot about the weather.

JUDGE GARY'S MISSION IN PENNSYLVANIA.

While the Democratic statesmen at Washington are investigating the steel trust with a view to extracting some political capital therefrom, Judge Gary, the executive head of that trust corporation is in Pennsylvania actively engaged in forming a world-wide and businesslike combination for the purpose of regulating steel prices at reasonably profitable levels.

Such a combination is not necessarily one in restraint of trade, but rather one in furtherance of it. It is not a Robber Trust, but an Equitable Regulation.

It is that if such a combination seeks or attempts to advance the prices of steel products unreasonably or extortionately it will find itself confronted by public opinion and eventual governmental interference perhaps of a drastic nature.

The large combination commonly designated as Trusts have come to realization of the fact that they must play fair with the consuming public or suffer the wrath of the Big Stick, and one of the first to recognize and act upon this fact was the United States Steel Corporation.

The Pennsylvania conference seeks international industrial peace. It follows the American policy of universal peace.

WILSON'S CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN LAUNCHED.

For a new beginner, Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey is making rapid progress in the political game.

Just out of college, where, however, he had been for a long time and in an honorable capacity, he became an accidental Governor. He now indulges in the hope that he may become an accidental President.

We are in receipt of a polite communication from his enterprising press bureau conveying the pleasing information that it will be glad to send us free of cost "plate matter relating to Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey."

No doubt this is "good stuff," especially for weekly papers banking for something to "fill up" without the bother of setting type; but The Courier is not that kind of a paper, hence it must decline.

"Good stuff" may be good, but we have a notion that it will not be so interesting to our readers as it perhaps is to his justly proud department of publicity.

Wingber succeeded in killing a woman on the Fourth of July with the aid of a bit of "rah pip" and some dynamite. While we are legislating against the use of firearms by foreigners, it might be wise to add another section regulating the use and abuse of dynamite. If this powerful explosive were handled with better care and guarded with greater vigilance, there would not be so much of it in the hands of ignorant foreigners not ignorant of its use.

Even the hot dogs are becoming overheated in Conneltsville.

The hot weather makes men hot.
Hot men fight. The Mayor collects the fine.

The innocent pop bottle is sometimes as dangerous as the old-time it was loaded with shot or revolver.

One of the most striking things about the celebration of the Fourth in Conneltsville is the fact that it was a quiet day at the hospital.

A Westmoreland brewery has been caught with the wet goods in Fayette county.

If B. Frank Smith is in as many places as he is reported to be by the enterprising press, he is an ubiquitous as he is elusive.

The assignment of school teachers is sometimes more difficult and perplexing than their election. They cannot be elected in bunches, but they must be assigned separately.

The Duquesne Limited took a tumble the other day but it was only a gamble, and it didn't hurt anybody.

Conneltsville consumed 3,000 gallons of ice cream on the glorious Fourth.
The Milk-and-Sugar Trust had the house interests broken a mile.

Senator Burton can talk Republican as well as River Improvement.

Mexico has just recovered from a revolution to be confronted with a street car strike. The last war promise to be more serious than the first.

Railroad and trolley accidents follow in the wake of the hot weather.

Our Mexican Minister is due to get his recall. If our own representatives are not respectful of our own dignity, how can we expect to be respected by foreigners? It is always up to the American representatives to set a good example.

THE FIFTH AT OUR TOWN.

By James of Yukon.

The Fourth was made romantic in Yukon town by the fact that with odds and ends of triumph Over fireworks and beer.

There was general celebration in each bungalow and hut.
There was music, rattling from bonfires in the air.

There was trouble in each cabin.
Grouching joy was very brief.
"Grouching" the active use of current brought a lot of hoarse grief.
Little did you shot off in anger:
Baby drank carbolic drops,
The hob attempted mischief
With a dozen feet of rope.

Did you guess an apple Jackson?
Tom was picked like a child.
Little Mary came near getting
On a quiet morning pill.
She was the smiling face
On her corn infected toes:
Jimmy broke his leg climbing:
Alexander smashed his nose.

Uncle Dan had three ribs broken
In a real indoor row.
Sister Fannie was kicked badly
By an old Bulgarian cow.
Pete had all his primers shattered
By a stick of dynamite.
Aunt Martha sought out heaven
By a placid cocaine kite.

Henry Jones who calls on Annie,
He got picked to the chin:
Fought and smothered a little Dingo.
Cost him twenty planks of tin.
Thus the Fourth was celebrated.
Made a gent of rough men.
Made a punk of Yukon hero.
History that will ever glow.

First City Directory.
J. H. Lott, the directory man, came in on the Duquesne this morning from New York and went on to Uniontown where he will work on the new directory for the County Seat for the next three weeks. Then he will come to Conneltsville and get out the first directory for the City of Conneltsville.

SHOULDER BRACES

PETITIONS FOR THE BARGAIN DAY.

They are Being Circulated Among the Merchants Today.

WANT ALL TO PARTICIPATE

Pro Rata Share of Expenses Is Not to Exceed 15 Per Cent, According to Decision at Last Night's Meeting. Merchants Favorable.

It was too hot last evening for many merchants to attend the meeting of the Bargain Day Committee, but despite this fact there was a representative turnout. Today and tomorrow petitions will be circulated asking all business houses to participate in the movement and agree to stand a pro rata share of the cost, not to exceed 15 per cent. The town was divided into districts and is being canvassed. The report of the canvassers will be turned in tomorrow evening in order the Executive Committee can formulate its report for the meeting to be held early next week.

Harry Dunn and Louis Featherman are canvassing North Pittsburgh street; W. T. Muir and J. G. Gorman are taking South Pittsburgh street; A. W. Bishop and M. H. Feldstein have Main street while the West Side was assigned to E. E. Stewart, who will choose a companion in the campaign.

When the report of the canvassers is made it will be possible to determine to just how great an extent the project can be advertised and how the bargains can be offered in a manner not only to attract trade to Connellville, but to benefit every merchant who participates in the movement.

Jail Delivery Fails in Pinch

United Press Telegram.

CHICAGO, July 6.—A dozen deputies with drawn revolvers today frustrated a daring attempt to escape from the Cook county jail, an escape which in many of its features equaled the famous flight of the Dillie brothers. William Quirk, who murdered his wife and mother-in-law and was seriously shot in a battle with the police, and Benjamin J. McFadden, a burglar who was shot in a fight while resisting arrest, were the three principals in the attempt. All were confined in the jail hospital.

Late yesterday a woman called upon Kandata and succeeded in passing to him a machine pistol, six cartridges and a dozen live saws.

The three wounded prisoners bound and gagged the night turnkey, Russell, and threw him on the bed. All night long the desperate men worked with feverish haste but the task proved too great for the wretched men. For a day when the time came for the turnkey to change, they released Russell, who immediately reported to Warden Davis and a dozen deputies with drawn revolvers cowed the men in the hospital while Davis searched them and found the pistol and the saws. The prisoners were then placed in solitary confinement in their cells.

A New Scheme of Financiers

Called Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Handicapped by the national banking laws, which limit the activity of national banks and prohibit the raising of certain classes of investments, the directors of the National City Bank of this city, the famous Standard Oil financial Gibraltar, are going into business for themselves in skin the cream of the business of the country.

Wall Street today cleared up the mystery concerning the recent organization of the $100,000,000 National City Company. It will, well posted financiers declare, occupy a distinct field in the world of finance, and will come closer to becoming a real "money trust" than anything previously conceived by the big interests.

We vouch for the wonderful properties of D. D. D. for we know that it brings instant relief for all kinds of skin trouble.

DISCRIMINATING LADIES

Enjoy Using Herpelide on Account of Its Distinctive Features.

The ladies who have used Newbro's Herpelide speak of it in the highest terms, for its quick effect in clearing the scalp of dandruff and also for its excellence as a general hair-dressing. It makes the scalp feel fresh and it allays that itching which dandruff will cause. Newbro's Herpelide effectively cures dandruff, as it destroys the germ that causes it. The same germ causes hair to fall out and later, baldness; in killing it, Herpelide stops falling hair and prevents baldness. It is also an ideal hair dressing, for it lends an aristocratic charm to the hair that is quite distinctive. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpelide Co., Detroit, Mich.

CHAPTER XI.

THAT night we took the express for Buffalo, arriving in the morning, and Mr. Grayman conducted us as once to the office of Henry Garland, one of the great bankers of the town, who was in the Grayman combination and who had been notified by telegraph of our coming.

Mr. Garland was delighted to oblige the billionaire by giving him the exclusive use of his private office.

In half an hour I had made all my arrangements, and again we waited. Payton was faithful to his appointment, and everything worked like a charm. As before, my uncle indicated every break in his talk and set himself while the waves were playing in a perfectly definite direction.

The distance and bearing of Buffalo from New York being known, I now had all the elements of the problem in my hands, and it only remained to solve it on paper, the matter of a minute or two.

But the reader may be interested in knowing what was said by Payton and Mr. Grayman on this occasion.

Payton opened by saying: "Good morning, Mr. Grayman. I have just been out catching a string of trout that it would do your eyes good to look upon. The dear girl becomes more fascinated with her surroundings here every hour, and really I am beginning to regret my agreement to exchange her society even for as large a sum as $10,000,000. However, a bargain is a bargain, and I shall stand by my word."

"Well, well," replied Mr. Grayman. "I have heard enough of this. Are you ready to talk business?"

"Quite ready, Mr. Grayman. But to begin, let me warn you that I know all about your machinations, and I advise you in a friendly spirit to drop them. If you do not I shall refuse to part with Helen on any terms. Make no mistake about the place that I already occupy in her esteem. You can never arrest this if you let it go on longer."

Payton was playing his master card for all that he thought it worth.

"What do you propose?" asked Mr. Grayman.

"I propose that you meet me with the money on Friday of this week, at the top of a bare hill, which you will have to dig out in recompense, near Utica, N. Y. If any question should arise in your mind as to the precise locality you can recognize it by seeing the Chamelion hovering over the hill. If you prefer you can send forward a representative, keeping at a safe distance, of course. But you know what will be the result of any attempted trap. I will deliver Helen in exchange for the money."

Mr. Grayman pretended to hesitate, while he held a consultation with the secretary.

"Friday of this week," said the latter. "It is now Wednesday. That gives us two days, which I think will be enough. I'm sure Allan must now have all the data he needs. Tell him you'll be there."

Mr. Grayman did so, and the pirate responded as usual, "Good!" adding, "Drop your gun now, which I have ready for everything of that kind."

And so the conversation ended.

The moment I appeared Mr. Grayman and the secretary eagerly commanded the result.

"It's all right," I said. "I have now only a little driving to do."

And immediately I sat down to do it. The lines from Buffalo and New York, as indicated by the needle, were by no means so divergent as I had expected, but the angle was easily manageable. I made the necessary calculations, the result of which much surprised me. Without saying a word I went over my figures again, the two men leaning over my shoulder in breathless expectancy. At last, satisfied with the accuracy of my work, I called for a large scale. One was brought and, opening the North American almanac, which I had with me, I established the distance of the two points when I placed my finger on a point away up in Labrador and said, somewhat excitedly, "That's where you'll find your man; there's where your daughter is, Mr. Grayman!"

"Good heavens!" cried the billionaire. "Away off there. Are you sure?"

"I'm not more sure that my hand is on my shoulder. There can be no mistake about it, provided that you are sure that both communications came from the same point."

"I'll bet all I'm worth on that," said the secretary.

"Then there's your man," I said, and I pressed my thumb nail into the map.

"Here," I said, "in New York, and this line indicates the path of the waves received yesterday. Here is Buffalo, and this other line shows the path of the waves that have just arrived. Where these two lines intersect must be Payton's lodge and the place of Miss Grayman's imprisonment."

Suddenly the secretary turned to me and said, "How far do you make it to Payton's place?"

"It must be more than 800 miles in an air line from New York," I replied.

"Yes, I should think it must be that distance. Now, err that our imperative business is to see that Payton doesn't get away before we can descend upon him. They say that his aero is very fast. He ought to be able to make 150 miles an hour," said Mr. Grayman.

"That's mighty fast," returned the secretary. "I doubt if we have a disc in our fleet that could hold that pace."

"Yes," I said, with some pride: "The Eagle can do it at need."

"The Eagle was my own aero, and I had often tried her out for speed," said Mr. Grayman. "Now, the speeder Payton's aero is the better for our present purpose, because the less need he will have of making an early start for the rendezvous. If he runs only a hundred miles an hour he could do the distance to Utica in six or seven hours; but, of course, he won't hurry. He need not start before tomorrow night, and probably will not, because he will prefer to come on by night in order to run the less risk."

"That's what he did before," said Mr. Grayman. "Then I made a little diagram like this:

"Then I made a little diagram like this:

LOCAL NOTES: A Guy Yapp and family have returned from a two-months abroading with a lot of valuable antiques. Mrs. Yapp has secured a gargoyle from Home's tomb. Sis Yappa copped off Oliver Cromwell's shaving-mug. Ira Yapp bought a glass eye once used by Goethe. Eli Yapp obtained a porous plaster belonging to the Duke of Alva and a C. Yapp bought an alleged handpainted Rembrandt which looks pretty, but which some of our best art experts and critics suspected to be really second-hand. All these treasures will be exhibited at the Annual Strawberry Festival of the Second Baptist on next Wednesday Evening, along with some stereoscopic pictures of the foreign lands visited by the Yapp family on their recent trip.

try, and we used always to run out over the sea for gun practice, employing commando balloons for targets. One of our aces could easily carry a hundred rounds of ammunition for each gun.

There was great competition among the gunners in marksmanship, and had on the Eagle a Connecticut Yankee, Ethel Knight, who was practically a dead shot and a great favorite among the men. We carried no drop ping bombs, like the navy aces, but each had a stand of automatic rifles and pistols, besides cutlasses. The full complement was ten men, including the commander, the engineer and the steersman. On this occasion our en tire flotilla carried thirty-eight fighting men. My own crew comprising only eight men, including myself, after I had made room for my two visitors.

There was a quick response to my signal to get under way, and in a few minutes, to the great admiration of the people below, the whole fleet, with its aeroplanes flashing in the sun, was speeding northward, the Eagle in the lead.

CHAPTER XII.

MISS GRAYMAN'S PREPARATION.

WHILE these preparations for her rescue were under way the unconscious prisoner in Labrador had at last awakened to a realization of her position.

While rummaging among the books in the library she had come upon the autobiography of Henry Morton.

It was not a book likely to attract the attention of a young woman, but she turned over its leaves, thinking more of the gap which the absence of Commodore Brown had left than of what she was really looking at. Presently she opened the volume in another place a letter sheet wedged between the leaves lay exposed full to view:

My Dear Captain—The damage to the Chamelion from our accident after carrying off Miss Peterson of Florida is more serious than you supposed. I and that four or five days will be required to repair her. I have sent her to a shop here and will report to you as soon as she is ready. Respectfully,

ADRIAN BRUNELL, Lieutenant.

Cincinnati, July 1, 1911.

Miss Grayman was agitated. Her hands convulsively gripped her throat as the truth burst upon her. The name of the Chamelion alone was enough, but now she suddenly remembered to have heard of read of "Captain Alfonso Payton." This, then, was the man who had succeeded in awakening so much personal interest in her. And who was his prisoner. This was the romantic adventure that her fancy had conjured up, invented by her friends, approved by her father and so innocently and joyously entered upon by herself. Oh, what a fool she had been! Oh, how she detested this villain who had kidnapped her and drawn from her smiles and sanity, for which she now hated herself!

She read the letter again, and the name of "Brunell" struck her. She had heard Payton address one of his men by that name. But no more conversation was needed. The scales had dropped completely from her eyes. Stimulated by indignation, strength and resolution came to her.

"Susan!" she called.

"Susan came running in, alarmed by her mistress' accent.

"Get our wraps, quick!"

"Why, Miss Helen, what?"

"Don't stand there questioning. Run!

"Quick! Quick!"

"The bewildered girl obeyed and in a minute returned with the garments.

"Come with me to the canoe!" commanded Miss Grayman, whose self control was growing with the emergency.

"Then we'll sit down and rest," was the reply.

They sat down on a fallen trunk, overgrown with soft, fresh moss. Presently Susan stretched herself out on her back, her face streaming with perspiration.

"Oh," she panted, "I shall die!"

"No, you won't die," said Miss Grayman, whose strength was sustained by a more terrible fear than Susan knew. "You'll feel all right in a few minutes."

"Are you not going to return to the lodge?"

"Heaven forbid!" cried her mistress. "Susan, do you know who it is that we are running away from? It is the Sky Pirate, Alfonso Payton!"

As they ran down the steps from the veranda and along the short path to the landing place Miss Grayman glanced fearfully around. "Thank heaven, Mrs. Williams was occupied somewhere about the house, and not a person was in sight."

"Into the canoe," said Miss Grayman in the same imperative voice, though she spoke hardly above a whisper, and Susan silently obeyed her. Miss Grayman seized the paddle, and in a few seconds they were out on the lake.

"Where are we going?" asked Susan wonderingly.

"Not a word! Don't make any noise!"

"Not a word! Don't make any noise!"

"Not a word! Don't make any noise!"

better progress. Miss Grayman tried to get up, and Susan panted at her heels. Suddenly Susan exclaimed, "Oh, Miss Helen, I can't—I can't go any farther!"

"Then we'll sit down and rest," was the reply.

They sat down on a fallen trunk, overgrown with soft, fresh moss. Presently Susan stretched herself out on her back, her face streaming with perspiration.

"Oh," she panted, "I shall die!"

"No, you won't die," said Miss Grayman, whose strength was sustained by a more terrible fear than Susan knew. "You'll feel all right in a few minutes."

"Are you not going to return to the lodge?"

"Heaven forbid!" cried her mistress. "Susan, do you know who it is that we are running away from? It is the Sky Pirate, Alfonso Payton!"

Susan was probably better read in the literature of piracy, especially as represented by the sensational journals, than her mistress, and at the name of Alfonso Payton she turned ashy pale.

"Oh, good Lordy!" she cried, when she recovered her breath. "You don't mean that Miss Helen? Why, he is the wickedest man in the world! I've read all about him in the Sunday Peace. If he gets us we're gone sure! He never gives you up unless you pay him $100,000. The paper said so. And if you don't pay you're killed! Oh, don't me, what shall I do? But won't Commodore Brown help us?"

"You know!" said Miss Grayman, her amusement at Susan's stupidity serving to animate her. "Of course Commodore Brown won't help us. He's the very man!"

"Commodore Brown is Alfonso Payton!"

Susan could say no more. She had no words and remained staring at her mistress with gaping mouth.

"But where will you go, Miss Helen? We'll get lost in the woods and where shall we sleep tonight?" she finally gasped.

"We are lost already," replied Miss Grayman gravely. "I could not and my way back if I wished to. As to where we shall sleep, I don't know—on the ground, under a tree, I suppose."

"But the bears!"

"We must trust in God."

"And what shall we eat?"

"To be killed! To starve? What were these in comparison with meeting that man again? Yet, by one of those curious mental freaks to which we are all subject, while Miss Grayman had thought neither of wild beasts nor of food, the idea that they would need covering at night had rushed upon her, and it was for that reason that she had sent Susan for the wraps.

And now they clung to these things and hugged them along as if their lives and safety depended upon them alone.

Miss Grayman made no reply to Susan's questions about what they should eat. She simply pressed on, and Susan followed. Sometimes they were caught in tangles of gnarled undergrowth, from which there seemed no issue. Yet, on and on they struggled. They were wearing the stout garments that Payton had recommended, but even these were becoming torn and disordered.

At last, weary beyond expression, they had to stop. It was getting dark in the woods, and they knew that the sun was near setting. Miss Grayman selected a spot where the covering of pine needles was deep and soft, under a group of trees, and, spreading her cloak and blinding Susan do the same with her wrap, lay down. They were worn out, hungry, thirsty, but they had no supper. They wished for fire, but that could not be had. So they lay down again, close together, arms intertwined, the daughter of the great billionaire embracing her humble sister, and finding a comfort in her companionship that at least warmed her heart.

They tried to sleep, but in addition to the cold, noises now arose that drove sleep from their tired eyes—strange sounds of the trackless wilderness, distant, wailing screams that gradually approached and filled them with terror, rustlings among the branches, the snapping of twigs in the dark darkness, heavier sounds from the depths of the forest, animal voices replying to one another. Eyes were watching them, though they did not know it. They twined their arms closer and trembled, and at last sobbed together. The cold increased, although after a time the nearer noises ceased. At last, in spite of all the discomfort, they fell asleep.

Then a dark form moved stealthily and silently from a thicket and approached them. It knelt beside the troubled sleepers and listened. Finally it reached out long arms and cautiously spread a warm robe over them. The next instant it had disappeared.

"The sun was shining on the treetops when they awoke, both opening their eyes at the same moment, dis turbed probably by some noise. For a few seconds Miss Grayman did not realize where she was. Then it all came back to her in a flash. Without raising her head she said to Susan: "Thank heaven the night is gone! We have escaped and today!"

A scream from Susan interrupted her. "Oh Lord, look!" cried the girl, who had arisen on her elbow.

Miss Grayman half rose in affright, and there, sitting on a log, stolidly staring at them, was Indian John. Susan after her fashion, fainted, but Miss Grayman was stronger. Although trembling with fear and surprise, she rose to her feet. Then for the first time she noticed the robe that had covered them. Her quick intelligence, awakened by recent events, told her the story in an instant. They had been tracked and recaptured.

For a minute the thought of resistance dwelt in Miss Grayman's mind. But how could she resist? She had no weapon, and the Indian was armed. They were both half-famished and worn out. No, resistance was not to be thought of. The girl did not burst into tears. She was too dazed. She said nothing whatever, but, turning to Susan, tried to revive her. At this Indian John silently brought water and threw it into the girl's face. She revived immediately. Then he offered them food, which they took, even with eagerness.

He did not hurry them. He seemed to have infinite patience. But at last he touched Miss Grayman on the arm and made her a sign that they must go on going.

Now he spoke. "Must not stay where had bears. Go back to lodge."

There was a gleam of grave humor in his eyes.

Miss Grayman made no reply, but, wearily and despairingly, she followed him, Susan clinging to her side. He scarcely glanced over his shoulder, although his wary eyes and ears knew their movements. He set a slow pace, as if commiserating their fatigue, but in an astonishingly short space of time they saw the gleam of the little lake and then the lodge. They had been traveling almost in a circle!

As they approached the lodge Miss Grayman's heart sank at the sight of the Chamelion. Payton had returned. Toward her he directed the meeting with him! But he did not appear. Neither was Mrs. Williams visible. The Indian led them to the door and paused, and they entered alone. Even yet not a person appeared, and they ascended, unaccompanied, to their apartments.

Miss Grayman threw herself on her bed and hid her heart-grieved face. She wept and sobbed. Wild thoughts ran through her brain. She even thought of making away with herself. Yes, if help did not come soon she would do that!

How Car Shops Beat Jeannettes

Special to The Courier.
SCOTTDALE, July 6.—The Car Shops team of Liverpool took both morning and afternoon games from the fast Jeannette Rubber Works team on the Fourth, Hockenbury was touched up for eight hits in the morning, but kept them well scattered, while Car Shops could do little with O'Brien. The game was closely contested, a dropped fly throwing the game Car Shops way.

The afternoon game was a runaway for Car Shops. Rice being pounded to all corners of the lot, while Horne was unhit with men on bases. For Jeannette the hitting of H. Goba featured, while the base running of Car Shops was in evidence.

Two good crowds saw the games and sweltered in the sun, and the lemonade and ice cream cone stand in left field did a lively business.

The scores.
